An unidentified PT boat, apparently manned by Cuban exiles from a point outside the U.S., attacked and sank a Cuban patrol boat off Cuba Saturday. The PT boat picked up two survivors, who later were flown to Miami. One asked for political asylum. Yesterday, James Donovan said on CBS-TV's Newsmakers that his negotiations with Castro on the release of 1,113 Cuban prisoners takes precedence over his campaign to unseat Jacob Javits, GOP Senator from New York.

Donovan said he was still hopeful the prisoners captured in the 1960 invasion of Cuba will be released. He also promised a stepped-up campaign against Javits.
